

Tipi

It's the most recognisable tent shape of them all - the Tipi. The Tortuga version is a true reproduction of a Sioux Indian Tipi. The height and smoke flaps provide a good outlet for the fumes from the central fire that would have been used for cooking and for warmth. A traditional Tipi is not a symmetrical cone but has an oval base with a steeper back wall which the Tortuga version faithfully copies. A half height inner wall provides additional protection against the cold and also helps the chimney effect. The Tipi is available in a variety of sizes and in two pure cotton weights of either 285g/m² or 380g/m².
